Whitney Defends Bear Business as "Life of Market" in Senate Quiz

Washington, April 18 (AP)—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, again sparred successfully with Senate "bear hunters" today as the Senate Banking Committee held in reserve a list of short sellers.

Appearing before a capacity crowd, the exchange head defended market practices and denied short selling was a depressing factor.

SHORTS "LIFE" OF MARKET

Whitney testified he had sold short the past, but not within nine months or a year.

The committee made no use of the list of short sellers furnished by Whitney Saturday. Counsel for the committee disclosed, however, that it included names of nationally prominent people, but said cursory examination did not reveal the names of cabinet officers.

"No," Whitney said, "but I know of it. It may be true there has been discussion whether this or that should be done in times of emergency, such as when Great Britain went off to the war."

MAKES NEW FLIGHT OVER CAPE FOR CONTACT

Rendezvous Near Spot Where He Flew Two Weeks Ago Is Indicated

Latest Developments

1—The Boston Evening American has determined that Col. Lindbergh flew over Cape Cod waters Saturday night and Sunday morning on some mission connected with the kidnapping of his baby. The night flight hinted at a rendezvous with the kidnappers. New "clue" strengthens the belief the baby is on Rum Row or hidden somewhere on the Cape or its nearby islands. New York says the kidnappers want $100,000 more, and that the money is ready for payment on a C. O. D. basis.

2—"We are in contact with the kidnappers and the baby will be returned soon."—Dr. John F. Condon, elderly New York "jail" negotiator, through whom the original $50,000 ransom was paid two weeks ago. Col. Breckinridge says of him: "He is the only one through whom actual contact with the kidnappers has been made." Efforts of the Norfolk intermediaries look less and less promising.

3—The end of the seventh week of the baby's absence is at hand and so far as the public is informed the police know nothing and suspect nobody and have made not one single step of progress toward solving this greatest modern crime mystery.

SMITH CAN BE ELECTED, SAYS SEN. WALSH

With Senator Walsh, Governor Fitzgerald, and others as speakers, Smith rallies will be held tonight in Holyoke, Springfield and Chicopee.

At an overflow meeting in Holyoke, Smith, last night defended his backing of the former Governor. He attacked the suggestion that Smith, if nominated, would be again defeated and he insisted that Massachusetts Democrats would stand by Smith to the end in gratitude for the success which Smith brought to the democracy here during the past few years.

SURE SMITH CAN WIN

"You can't tell me," the Senator said, "that anybody can force into the ears of the Massachusetts Democrats that Smith can't win, and that they had better get on the band wagon of some other man."

If that doctrine was sound, he argued, he himself would never have been Governor of Senator. Walsh contended that Smith was not defeated in 1928.

"Temperance, anti-prohibition sentiment, liberal and progressive thought and action were defeated in 1928 but the defeat was only temporary and the leader for these great issues and principles is battling on again and we in Massachusetts will be with him to the end," the speaker maintained.

Although not mentioning him by name, he criticized Governor Roosevelt for his opposition to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Democrats thereupon he stated, had joined together in establishing this success. He asserted that the corporation had checked bank closures and protected the savings of the people.

With the country in such a position, he said, the shrewd, strong and most courageous and far-seeing statesman should head the government for the next four years. Walsh claimed that Smith's four square stand on prohibition cost him thousands of votes, but proved him a man of courage and daring. Smith, he said, raised the prohibition question from the gutter and made it a great moral and economic issue. Today, he said, Smith is steadily growing in the direction pointed by Smith.

Former Mayor Fitzgerald quoted Governor Roosevelt to the effect that Smith has all the qualifications for a leader in any great movement in the country.

Min. Mary Ward and Congressmen William J. Crawford of Longmeadow were other speakers. Chairman Frank J. Bourne of the state committee presided.

MAYOR LASHES WALSH STAND ON JOB AID

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Mayor Curley today entered the final phase of his fight for reelection for President.

The mayor showed no sign of strain after 41 days and nights of campaigning, during which he has made innumerable radio speeches and talked to capacity audiences in every sizeable city in the state.

In a second invasion of the Boston wards, the mayor tonight spoke at rallies in East Boston, Codman sq. and in Roxbury.

1906 AT RALLY

At a monster rally in the Hotel Statler, attended by some 1200 Roosevelt enthusiasts, the mayor hit out sharply at United States Senator David I. Walsh for voting against the La Follette bill to provide work for the unemployed while supporting the $2,000,000,000 appropriation to aid the bankers.

Analyzing the speech of the senior Senator in Worcester, the mayor declared that he devoted himself to defending his action for the bankers.

"It was an action of the rank-and-file character to appropriate $2,000,000,000 for the bankers and the international bankers and not one cent for the workers," the mayor charged.

Because Roosevelt had the courage to point out that the way to bring the country back to prosperity was by working up from the bottom and not down from the top, the Mayor said, he had been accused of being a "demagogue."

APPROVED BY LABOR

"Senator Walsh is asking the people to vote for a man whose name won't even be mentioned in the convention," the mayor asserted.

The presence of leaders of organized labor on the platform, the mayor said, testified to the great faith that labor has in Governor Roosevelt. Roosevelt, he declared, drafted a program which, if put into effect by the federal government and the other states, would have ended the unemployment problem.

In paying his compliments to President Hoover, the mayor charged him as the "best friend Great Britain ever had."

He said that as an expatriation of gratitude, Great Britain asked that "Andy" Mellon be sent over to represent America at the Court of St. James.

The mayor also took a fling at Governor Bigelow, listing his address there "If you want me I will be a candidate," to Bob Emery's spelling bee.

James H. Brannan of Charleston, member of the governor's council, discounted claims that Smith's candidacy turned Massachusetts Democratic.

Douglas, Ariz., April 18 (AP)—Reporting he had been kidnapped and held for ransom in Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico, but escaped, a man claiming to be C. R. Messer of Hugo, Okla., was questioned by police today.

The man came to the police station when told by the clerk at the local Y. M. C. A. that police were holding his hand.

Although the clerk said a man, Messer, had checked the suitcase with him, the man at the station was said by police to have convinced them he was Messer by identifying letters and papers.

Former Governor Holloway of Oklahoma had instituted the search for Messer.

NOW... MY DAUGHTER KNOWS

She called it one of my silly notions... insisting on Jenney Aero and nothing else. But she's learned her lesson and now she knows my reasons.

I loaned her my roadster over the weekend. She didn't follow my instructions. She filled the tank with some inferior gasoline. Hard traveling did the rest. It took four of them to push it down the road to get it started. Then she coaxed it all the way home and limped in an hour behind the others.

She wouldn't believe it was all in the gasoline. But I had the tank drained and re-filled with Jenney Aero. Then I asked her to get in and drive. Now she knows.

GRUELLING GRILL AHEAD FOR MASSIE ON CONFESSION

DEFENSE WINS POINT

There was no intention of killing the dusky athlete, but when he confessed to the attack "Lionel" Massie's mind "went black," the officer testified.

"I am going to try to make this man tell the truth in this case," he hasn't done it yet," Kelley cried, declared today as he laid his battle line.

Darrow and the young Irish prosecutor clashed—with Darrow emerging the victor—at the very outset of the cross-examination.

The veteran of the defense accused Kelley of attempting to inject a racial issue into the case by questioning Lionel Massie concerning his Kentucky birth and his pride in being a Southerner and a naval officer, Judge Charles S. Darrow halted Kelley on the objection of Darrow.

"It doesn't matter whether Lionel Massie is proud of being a Southerner or a Southerner; this line of questioning has for its only purpose the creating of prejudice in the minds of some of these jurors and has no bearing on the case," Darrow told International News Service.

With the crux of the trial definitely shifted to the question of Lionel Massie's mental condition at the time of the shooting, interest was focused on the alienists, certain to play an important role before the work has ended.

BATTLE OF ALIENISTS

Darrow admitted today for the first time that he would call to the witness box two mainland psychiatrists, Dr. Edward Huntington Williams and Dr. Thomas J. Orin, who have been carefully studying Lionel Massie in every one of his court appearances.

The state has also had two doctors in court, but they are not expert alienists, although their local reputation in medical circles is excellent. They are Dr. Stanley D. Poter, University of Hawaii psychologist, and Dr. Robert Faust, county physician.

Dr. Paul Bowers, noted Los Angeles psychiatrist, is already on the high seas en route to Honolulu and was expected to become the spearhead of Kelley's attack on the insanity issue—providing, of course, that his views as to Lionel Massie's mental condition coincide with the state's case.

Despite the tragic story wrung from Lionel Massie on the witness stand, Kelley is far from satisfied with the officer's account of how things happened that day that Kahahawai was kidnapped.

DISBELIEVES MASSIE

"I don't believe Massie ever held the gun in his hand at the Lieut. Thomas H. Massie will continue to tell his story before judge and jury in Honolulu "honor slaying" trial today. His dramatic re-enactment of the "killing moment" has thrilled the nation. time the shot was fired," said Kelley.

"I don't believe him when he says everything went black in his mind when Kahahawai confessed to attacking his wife.

"This man is not and was not insane now or then and he is not telling the truth."

"Massie was forced into a position in this case that he absolutely could not avoid."

"Certainly he could not hide behind the skirts of Mrs. Fortescue. Nor could he, as an officer and a gentleman, allow the blame on the two enlisted men."

Having thus reviewed his reaction to Lieut. Massie's testimony, it was certain that Kelley's cross-examination would be sharp and persistent.

Darrow, however, has announced that he is willing to stand on the words of the 27-year-old submarine officer. There was no question but that his straightforward story made a deep impression on the mixed jury.

COLLAPSE FEARED

Guarded from intrusion, the four defendants spent the week-end resting at the Pearl Harbor naval base.

The strain on both Lieut. Massie and Mrs. Fortescue has been severe during the past week, and it was feared that unless they relaxed completely they might face a nervous collapse.

Lieut. Massie's appearance on the stand subjected the young officer to an ordeal more nerve-racking than a naval battle, he confided to friends.

Mrs. Fortescue followed every word uttered by her son-in-law

Trial Fails to Disturb Calm of Accused "Gobs"

Honolulu, T. H., April 15 (INS).—To the "happiness twins," the Fortescue-Massie "honor slaying" trial is just a fine vacation.

The "happiness twins" are Albert S. Jones and E. J. Lord, the two naval enlisted men on trial with Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue and Lieut. Thomas H. Massie charged with killing a native to avenge an attack on Mrs. Massie.

Friends of Jones and Lord say they are doubly serious about the case, but outwardly the "gobs" are the most unconcerned of the four defendants.

GRIN TIES KELLEY

Jones' constant grin has proved most disconcerting to Prosecutor L. C. Kelley, but Kelley's front of disapproval have only brought fresh smiles from the sailor.

CARDINAL APPEALS FR. COUGHLIN FOR HIS DEMAGOGIC TALKS

Considerable discussion was expected in Catholic circles today as a result of the address of Cardinal O'Connell to the Guild of St. Agnes, in which he denounced the radio activities of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Royal Oak, Mich. Although the cardinal did not mention Father Coughlin by name, there was no doubt as to whom he was referring in his criticism of the "individual from Michigan" for "uttering demagogic stuff to the poor" making "sensational accusations against banks and bankers," and for "being consumed with false pride."

SPARKING AS CITIZEN

Cardinal O'Connell made it plain he was speaking as a citizen and not as a priest, bishop or cardinal. However, in talking to the Guild of St. Agnes, the American hierarchy, the denunciation of the activities of the famous radio priest is regarded as a significant pronouncement.

"This Sunday afternoon radio address has been stopped for the season," the cardinal said in his address yesterday. "I am glad, for it was going a little too far."

He declared that the Catholic church was a serious organization dealing in human souls and that it was for all classes. He pointed out that one could not make accusations about one class for the church was for all.

PIEST ON JOURNEY

In the church organization the "piest" has this place and better stay there; better for him and better for the world at large," the cardinal said.

"When the parish priest tries to direct the affairs of a neighboring parish, he is very soon called to order by the bishop," the cardinal asserted.

Attempts to reach Fr. Coughlin for comment on the criticism of Cardinal O'Connell were fruitless. It was learned the famous radio priest had left Chicago for Los Angeles last night. He is expected to be traveling in California by way of Spokane, Wash., and Portland, Ore. He is expected to be in California for at least one month.

CONFIDENT OF RELIEF

Cardinal O'Connell said in part: "I want to emphasize that when I am speaking for myself, as a Catholic citizen in America, not as a priest, a bishop or a cardinal, I am passing through times that are serious. There is no doubt that all men, with exceptions here and there, are doing their best to obtain a solution."

"They are talking it out, fighting it out. Each is suggesting and talking, but that is inevitable. Out of it will come a solution that is sensible and practical, a solution that will be for the general advantage of the nation and not for any one side, class, or party."

"What must the people do? We must exercise patience and not lose our heads in these trying times. What is the first rule in a crisis? Don't get rattled, keep calm. Nothing is achieved by stressing popular sentimentality."

"That anything may spill it, don't be whisked off your feet by orators."

UNDESERVED ATTENTION

"Men must able to act don't talk. They do in a quiet sort of way, and they don't want credit for it. In a moment of crisis, men must forget themselves. Surely that is not asking too much from the American people. I am asking them to hold their feet on the ground, and not be whisked off their feet by spectacular talk, mostly truth, but some with poison in it."

"We do not like to hear about hysterical addresses from ecclesiastics. They have a way of attracting attention they do not deserve. The fact is they are not entirely just. We Catholics know the normal way the faith is propagated and its principles enunciated. When it is a case of universal truth the head of the church, the Holy Father, speaks."

"There is a man in Florida or Michigan, I forget which, who talks every Sunday afternoon. He talks to the world. What right has he to do this? If he talks about those things which are religious, we do not mind. Here we have the Catholic Truth Hour on Sunday, but I know who is talking, and he knows I am listening."

"The church was founded on God's truth. The spectacularly talking man cries out and popularity and is consumed with false pride. That is the way trouble has always started in the church. He may become popular in a false cause. If not false, at least untrue."

"The Catholic Church is a treasure."

Oil Monopoly Looms in Newfoundland
St. John's, N. F., April 15 (AP)—A proposal to give the Imperial Oil Co. sole rights for the sale of petroleum products in Newfoundland for 15 years in return for an investment of $175,000 in Newfoundland bonds is before the government.

The proposal was outlined in the board of trade by Sir Percy Thompson of the British treasury department.

Bandits Raid Church, Bind Trustee, But Miss Collection

New York, April 15 (AP)—Through an unusual variation in routine of handling the money, the $200 collection taken at the St. Thomas Tabernacle during a service was intact today after bandits attempted to steal it. Usually the money is placed in a safe in the church. Last night, George Anderson, a trustee, decided to put it in the pastor's room. When Charles Bittorf, another trustee, went into the sexton's room while the pastor, Robert A. Brown, was delivering the sermon, he was seized by two men who bound Bittorf, but failed to find the money and made their getaway.

NOBLE TO FIGHT FOR NEW TRIAL

The fight for a new trial for Russell Noble, confessed hammer slayer of Mrs. E. C. Ellis, wealthy Haverhill widow, which is expected to open in Supreme Court later this week, will be based on the claim that the boy prisoner is insane.

Atty. George A. Douglas, of Boston, at counsel for Noble, today declared he was not yet ready to enter proceedings in the Supreme Court and felt it would be unwise for him to discuss the case at this time.

It will be contended that Noble was mentally irresponsible when he made his confession to the police and also when he entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to state prison for life. He was 17 at the time and a senior in Haverhill high school. He was also a Sunday school teacher in Bradford, where he lived with his grandmother.

CAPE PROBER SAYS KIDNAP IS CAPONE PLOT

New Bedford, April 18.—That the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby is really a plot to free Al Capone was the gist of a telephone message received here by a Federal agent working on the Lindbergh case. The call was received Friday night, the Boston Evening American learned, and attempts to reach it in its source in Boston have been unsuccessful.

The Federal agent was called to the phone on a party-party call and a voice said: "Hello."

The agent answered twice and received this message, delivered in a man's voice:

"O. K. Now I know it's you. I'm talking from Boston. Think it over. A $50,000 fine, 11 years in jail. The $50,000 has been paid. He's waiting to be sprung now. Who is it? You were near. Spread it."

The federal investigator who received the call is known to run runners on Cape Cod because of his activities against them. He said that Capone, who was fined $50,000 and sentenced to 11 years imprisonment for evasion of income tax laws, was undoubtedly the person referred to by the anonymous caller.

The Capone theory, once very strong, is again in the foreground of conjecture in this case, not only because of the phone message but because internal revenue agents who brought about Capone's conviction are directing the federal investigation of the kidnapping.

ARREST NEAR IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, April 18 (AP).—Authorities confidently predicted the arrest today of a man and woman alleged to have kidnapped nine-year-old Hilda Brodsky for $50,000 ransom in Wilmington, Del., Friday. Knowledge of the identity of the guilty persons was professed by police.

Hilda was dropped from an automobile at the parish house of Rev. Joseph Pugliese here yesterday, and later was taken home slightly hysterical. The child had not been harmed. Fr. Pugliese and police said no ransom was paid.

Police also asserted they made no pledge of immunity. The priest declined to discuss this week, not admitted he was "bound not to reveal some details of the matter."

Detective Capt. Crendon said his agents knew who the abductors were as soon as they heard of the affair and that they had "an advance tip."

KIDNAPING CALLED HOAX Plot to Mislead Public, is Charge

The Lindbergh baby was not kidnapped for ransom. Its disappearance was arranged by powerful interests close to the administration, who believed their action would result in "saving America."

These interests will keep the baby in hiding so long as the story which has commanded the front page of every newspaper since March 3, can divert public attention. At least one New York paper has been "requested" to keep the kidnapping on Page One.

Such are the charges made by Laura Vinyard, who for five weeks covered the story at Hopewell for a New York evening newspaper, and who offers evidence to prove her statements in her book, "The Lindbergh Kidnapping," just published by Fero.

"LINDY" VICTIMIZED

So sure is Mrs. Vinyard of her facts that she promises the return of the baby soon after the real nature of the kidnapping becomes known.

"This is not an attack on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife," the author made clear in an interview today. "They have been victimized, just as the American public has."

"Not only has the public had a false picture of the kidnapping, but this scheme to cover up grave national embarrassment, but it will pay for the effort in the turn of millions out of its own pockets."

"Many of the amazing developments that have flooded the newspapers in the last eight weeks in the unfolding of the kidnapping story, would seem to have exploded the mystery had they ever been subjected to the least critical scrutiny."

CLUES SPURIOUS

"Others closer to the tragedy than ourselves have been imposed upon. They include Dr. John F. Condon, the Bronx schoolmaster of the 'Jattler' episode; Rev. H. Dobson-Francis, and John Hughes Curtis, whose names are linked with the Norfolk quest, and many others. These persons acted and are acting in good faith, but the episode themselves have been engineered by a male mind, not only at kidnapping, but also at effective publicity."

Among the clues which Mrs. Vinyard cites as spurious are the three children, supposed to have been used in making away with the child. The one in Chesapeake Bay, and likewise the boat off Martha's Vineyard, in which the kidnappers were supposed to have had him hidden, the underworld searches and reports of progress by Bill Bittle and by Morris Brown, and

MYSTERY TOPS BY THESE CONTINUE

Trenton, N. J., April 18 (INR).—Convinced he has re-established contact with the genuine abductors of the stolen Lindbergh baby, Dr. John F. Condon, New York City, today hoped his mission as chief intermediary for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh within a few days to accomplish the safe return of the child.

He again engaged in mysterious trips today from his Bronx home, where he was in conference with Col. Henry Breckinridge, chief adviser to Lindbergh, until early today.

SILENT ON PLANE TRIP

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State Police, refused to say anything about a puzzling flight by two men in a plane from Falmouth, Mass., near Martha's Vineyard, where the men who received the ransom money from Condon the baby would be turned over to Lindbergh.

Reports that Lindbergh himself pointed this plane yesterday could not be confirmed.

But an exchange of signals between the coast guard destroyer the linking of the kidnapping with efforts to free Al Capone.

She poles fun at the "heats" bulletin issued by a Harry Moore of New Jersey, and takes good natured, jobs at the intellectual efforts of the picked force of detectives, New Jersey State police, and private sleuths making their headquarters in the "white house" garage.

Dr. Pickett Warns Foes of Dry Law

Waterbury, Vt., April 18.—Dr. Devo Pickett, research secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist church, challenged opponents of prohibition to "justify the terrible implications of their conduct."

Speaking at the annual conference of Vermont Methodists, he said: "Men who are pouring out their millions to destroy the prohibition law must assume full responsibility for the possible consequences."

Services Tomorrow For Sergt. Carlson

Sergt. Charles Carlson, retired for 27 years a member of the bar, whose plane is dead in his home, 85 Lombard st., Duxbury.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in All Saints' Church, Peabody, by Donahue.

LINDBERGH FLIES TO RENDEZVOUS OFF CAPE COD

aport where, two weeks ago, he flew in the expectation of recovering his son after paying $50,000, was indicated.

Whether such a rendezvous was at all known.

One man, a companion, Col. Lindbergh on the night flight, which began and presumably ended in New York.

The plane, enroute over Vineyard Sound and flew to some point southeast of the island of No Man's Land.

During part of its flight, a Coast Guard destroyer lay between Lindbergh and Gay Head, abate with a light, and burned a magnesium flare upon the water.

MAY HAVE LANDED

The flare is believed to have been a marker or signal for Col. Lindbergh. It was not sent to land near the destroyer but may have done so, for Col. Lindbergh's passenger, it is understood, was the man who boarded the destroyer, MacDougal from the Lindbergh flight party to Cuttyhunk on April 13.

Secret service agents of the Treasury Department have command of the activities of the Cape waters, the Boston Evening American learned.

This gives them access to and surveillance over the movement of coast guard craft. The denial of consanguinity that they are participating in the case is a result of secrecy imposed by the federal government.

The coast guard is still seeking the "dark boat" of the run trade, without a name, but from which a sign bearing the name "Hill" was to have been hung for the purposes of identification during the negotiations which failed to materialize.

Developments today satisfied the investigators that the two women with the ran sedan who were seen and talked with on the wharf at Vineyard Sound were the actual kidnappers who were to deliver the baby over to Col. Lindbergh.

So far, however, the federal investigators have been unable to locate the two women, although the elder and stouter of the two is declared to be the confidential housekeeper of a bootlegger on the Cape Cod bay side of Cape Cod.

COAST GUARD ACTIVE

The women were talked with on Sunday morning, April 17, the day on which Col. Lindbergh was believed to have flown to the locality in expectation of obtaining the return of his kidnapped son after paying $50,000 in ransom money through Dr. John F. Condon, Fordham University lecturer, who declared he would deliver the child.

He had attended the conference "from a personal standpoint and interest."

FOCAL POINT

clares he tossed the money over a cemetery wall in the Bronx of New York.

Boasting up the Evening American information that Col. Lindbergh had made another flight over the Cape was information that the Coast Guard cutter Mayaguez left the Boston Navy Yard, under secret sailing orders, with a destination declared to be in the vicinity of Vineyard Sound, somewhere off Cuttyhunk.

The Evening American also learned today of a three-hour conference between former Police Chief William Mahoney of Palmouth, who resigned late Friday to take effect on Saturday, and Police Inspector John A. Dwyer of Boston at the conclusion of which Inspector Dwyer was "nothing to say."

Chief Mercer, about whom reports were circulating Saturday that he had resigned in order to give all his attention to the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation, declared

SILENT ON WORK

Former Chief Mercer said that he has been requested to continue his activities in the case but declared he is not at liberty to disclose to the public the details of which he is working.

It is being reported, however, that Mercer and Inspector Dwyer are working in investigation of one of the letters in a series mailed to Col. Lindbergh from points on Cape Cod and which have been under federal scrutiny.

One of the letters has led the federal men to search for a "straw man" of a Cape Cod bootlegger.

The "straw man" is asserted to be the paper-holder of a number of properties on Cape Cod and of Jackman, Me., which have figured in run-running in the past.

Practically all the properties in the "straw man" name are those which the Cape's largest loads of liquor have been landed in the past few years.

It is understood that there were present also at the conference with the Boston inspector and the former police chief, two federal investigators named Rice and Fox, who have spent nine days in the vicinity of Woods Hole, Vineyard Haven and New Bedford, checking up on various phases of the kidnapping case.

A mystery angle in the investigation was injected today through the appearance at Vineyard Haven of Judge Thomas Connolly of Brighton court, who assumed a taciturn attitude when questioned.

When Judge Connolly was asked if he was interested in any way in the kidnapping investigation and his presence at Vineyard Haven had any significance in that regard, he replied:

"It is of minor importance in me and I don't care to discuss it. This whole matter is of a confidential nature and will be made public at the proper time."

BAG NEW CLUE

The presence of Judge Connolly and his mysterious statement gave rise to conjectures as to whether the widespread ramifications of the kidnapping case had touched on any person whom he had defended in the past.

A principal exhibit at Vineyard Sound today in the kidnapping case was a black leather bag containing a man's clothing from which all identifying marks had been removed.

Pounded by a trout fisherman in an almost inaccessible part of Martha's Vineyard, the bag was turned over to the state police, who adopted the theory that it was a clue to the kidnappers, either accidentally dropped by them, or intentionally left by them.

F. L. Bowditch of North Tisbury described his discovery of the bag in a steep ravine two miles from

THREE 10 DAYS

Bowditch said the bag was two-thirds down one side of the ravine and was broken open as though by a fall from a considerable height. About 30 yards away was a man's shoe, size 10 and extra-wide.

The state police said the bag had been lying where it was found about 10 days. It is a black leather hand satchel, apparently used for a long time.

Its contents include, a blue serge suit with a new belt, size 40, a watch, a pair of trousers, in the pockets of which were a Chinese laundry check, 18 cents in change, a pocket comb and a woman's handkerchief, a soft white shirt with a detachable collar, size 37; a bunch of keys in a leather case; a pin; a rayon night cap; toilet articles; a roll of athletic underwear; a leather cigarette case with "Hudson Steamship Line" stamped on it; a coil of belt, with a brown felt hat hanging from the name of "Woods Brothers," a box of matches and a roll of adhesive tape.

LIKE A PAGEANT OF THE PERIOD OF LOUIS XIV, THE Prince-Elliot wedding came under the Directorate influence in the scarlet of the bridesmaids' dresses, reminiscent of the maid of honor's robe, representing the magnificence of the French Court, and the virginal satin of the bride as she walked down the aisle like a winged victory.

All of the costumes were of the Empire suggestion, high-waisted and very long, with Empress Eugenie hats over the eye and corsages of satin roses. Ivory prayer books replaced the usual shower bouquets.

Miss Priscilla, sister of the bride, was unusually lovely in gold tissue over tulle, with laquer red roses at her belt.

We think we have never seen a more beautiful bride. . . nor a happier one. Justine smiled sweetly as Catherine Olney went down the long, dim aisle to meet her future husband, and smiled up at him as he beamed down upon her as they returned to greet their friends. . . it was so cunning and natural.

Bridal Gown on Long, Slim Lines
HER BRIDAL DRESS WAS MOULDED ON LONG, SLIM lines, catching on the carpet as she walked which gave the impression of a sculptor figure. . . a tiny pointed cap of pearls held her tulle veil. . . while her arms were full of white orchids. . . such an enchanting bride we have seldom seen. . . and Mr. Elliot seemed to think so too.

At the Reception
AFTER THE CEREMONY, we dashed out to The Country Club at Brookline, where the guests were assembled to greet the young bride and groom.

EVEN THERE THE DECORATIONS carried out the general impression of Directorate. . . the bride's table was resplendent in laquer red and gold, with flowers, and a mountain of fancy icing with flower design. . . around which was encircled a six-inch wreath of gardenias. . . on the red cloth it was too lovely. Even on the handle of the knife with which the new bride cut the cake was a cluster of gardenias.

Large Attendance
THIS WAS ON THE ENCLOSED veranda which is circular and which was cleared for dancing. . . in the reception room against a bank of green, red, and white. . . Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott received.

Simply Thousands
OF people gathered to meet the popular young couple. . . we saw Marguerite Merrill, one of the May brides, in a variety of green, erpe de chute with matching hat. . . Elizabeth Houghton, a very pretty but of a few seasons ago when we do not know about. . . looking very chic in the modern dark blue, with hat trimmed with white.

Clever Young Lady
ELIZABETH MORRISON, sister of one of the bridesmaids, Radcliffe student, and very clever young lady in a variety of green. . . let us remember, or it is old rose, she wore, or red. . . it was her little nose veil was most bewitching.

The Little Flower Girl
JANE WALSH, was adorable in cream lace with garland of red flowers on her hair and carrying an old fashioned bouquet.

Among the Girls who came out a few years ago we saw Mary Margaret Loring, in black ensemble.

Peggy Barney, daughter of Mrs. J. Dallinger Barney, also in black.

Catherine Olney, in black dress with green and white flowered collar with matching hat. . . quite springlike.

A Bride-to-Be
HELEN STONE, whose engagement to Ralph Edwards was announced last fall, looked very charming in a smart Oxford grey suit with fur.

Catherine Robinson wore brown and indigo, it was almost an autumn affair, there was so much of that tone in evidence.

Miss Ethel O'Hara
Bride of Bagnulo
A large gathering attended the wedding of Miss O'Hara, assistant U. S. district attorney, and Miss Ethel M. O'Hara of Jamaica Plain, in St. Thomas Church, Jamaica Plain. The Rev. Maurice J. Flynn performed the ceremony. The couple will make their home at 155 Grant ave.

SHALL WE TEAR DOWN STATUES OF DARWIN?

By GILBERT SELDES

SOMETHING CONSIDERABLY more interesting and exciting than crooned love songs and the patter of ducky or Jewish comedians came over the radio a few nights ago. A broadcast from London by Sir James Jeans, and his subject was the present position of science. It was a pleasure to hear that in a world of depression and deflation the universe continues to expand and to inflate itself. For the moment there are no cosmic panics. The space around us is "like the surface of a soap bubble or a balloon which is at all the time being blown up," and the final explosion, the great universal bang, is not yet scheduled. While everything else is getting smaller, everything itself is getting larger. It also strikes us as only natural that objects beyond the firmament "are moving away from us at a speed of nearly a million miles every minute."

Sir James says that it takes one hundred and forty million years for light from these objects to reach us, but my own opinion is that the reverberations from Congress have reached them, and for their own safety, they are putting as much space between themselves and us as they can.

This idea of an expanding universe upon which mathematicians and physicists have been working in our own time was called by Sir James the sixth of the landmarks of science established in the last six thousand years. As the first of these was the publication in 1543 of Copernicus, we can count the whole six landmarks in less than four hundred years. And we can also wonder how many of these profoundly important books can be read.

I have, myself, never met anyone who has so much as mentioned the title of the first landmark looking up. I find that it was called "De Revolutionibus Orbium Coelestium." About Newton, we know that in 1666 he was sitting in his orchard and saw an apple drop to the ground. But what else do we know of his "Principia," published twenty years later? Darwin appeared in the age of publicity. His "Origin of Species" is occasionally read, but it is hardly only a half a dozen men, outside of scientists, who could give a clear account of what the title means. It is a mysterious electricity, the discovery of which is Sir James' fourth landmark, although it is not nearly as obscure as Einstein's theory of relativity, which is the fifth.

It doesn't often occur to us that because of Copernicus our form of government is regularly democratic, and that we have trouble with the "younger generation," and that armies now consist of millions of men, and that in Western countries, at least, most human beings learn how to read. What Copernicus did was a work of annihilation. He destroyed the idea that the heavens and the glory thereof existed for the sake of the earth. There has probably never been so great a shock to self-esteem as the suggestion that the earth was merely an accidental speck, one of many enlivened by the indifferent sun. For if the earth was not important, then these decorations of the earth seemed to have been made, because an accident.

Ship Newton for a moment and come to Darwin, who repeated and drove home the same lesson, since he proved that man was only animal, with no more right to land, by implication, with no more dignity than any other beast of the field. Isn't Darwin a little responsible for the breakdown of the rigid laws of sexual morality? Isn't the chatter about the survival of the fittest the distant cause of the Battle of the Marne and so on and so on, of the panic of 1932 and our present war?

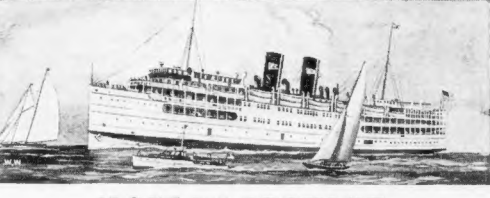

I skipped Newton because what Copernicus and Darwin destroyed, Newton and Einstein have partly rebuilt. But to the dignity, even the nobility, of human life. It does not matter that Einstein revised or destroyed the laws that Newton announced. The important thing is that both of them, and thousands of other scientists, and some artists and moralists, and perhaps several million obscure and decent human beings are trying to do the one thing which makes human life noble—that is, they are trying to find out by what immutable laws our lives are governed. So long men may take pleasure in contemplating anything as fixed and distant as these laws, they need not be too sad happy over remembering the slime out of which their ancestors rose.

GOOD TIMES IN IOWA

(Classified ad in The Boston Herald & Tribune)

We're gonna have more ginolins in Iowa where the tall corn grows. We say fish to the cows and pigs. What this state needs is more good girls. A lady can't well give our schools. And change curriculums and rules. We'll teach our farmer boys to play. Like Buddy Rogers and Vallee. We'll teach them to be crooning swains. And loving birds to foolish dames. From wealthy mills of greying locks. We'll teach our boys to get the rocks. The senile gals from old Broadway. Will flock to dear old Iowa. They'll bring along a lot of jack. And then good times will soon be back.

Makes You Lose Unhealthy Fat

Mrs. Ethel Smith of Norwich, Conn., writes: "I lost 16 lbs. with my first bottle of Kruschen. Being on night duty it was hard to sleep. But now since I am taking Kruschen I sleep plenty, eat as usual and lose fat, too."

To take off fat—the one half that of Kruschen salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—on down on pasty and fatty morning light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—only a few cents—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you, ask the KAPPA and Kruschen way to lose fat—your money and your health.

Don't accept anything but Kruschen because you want relief safely.

Guaranteed Deposits Best Hoarding Cure

Under the progressive leadership of Speaker Garner the Democratic House of Representatives is preparing to give to all depositors in all banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System the protection to which they are entitled.

Congressman Steagall, of Alabama, Chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, has been authorized to report favorably his carefully drawn bill to guarantee all deposits in Federal Reserve member banks.

A fund of $517,000,000 is provided by the Steagall bill to provide a guaranty without a Treasury appropriation.

This guaranty fund would be created out of $167,000,000 franchise taxes paid by banks to the Reserve system; $150,000,000 from surpluses now in the hands of the banks, and an assessment of $200,000,000.

To administer the guaranty fund the Steagall bill authorizes the creation of a board to be composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency and three members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

This board would have complete charge of the liquidation of closed banks and authority to pay off depositors in full at any time after a bank is closed.

A period of ninety days would be allowed within which to appraise the assets of the closed bank and to pay depositors the full amount of their deposits either within twenty-four months of the closing of the bank or earlier if the board so decided.

To cure what has been regarded as an unusual provision of the National Banking Law the Steagall bill provides that no national bank shall be chartered with a capital of less than $50,000 and a surplus amounting to 10 per cent of the capital.

State banks not members of the Federal Reserve System would be permitted to contribute to, and participate in, the guaranty fund upon payment of an assessment in double the amount required of member banks of the Federal Reserve System.

The Hearst newspapers congratulate the Democratic leadership of the House and Chairman Steagall and the members of his Committee on Banking and Currency for their intelligent and timely legislative effort to relieve depositors in closed banks and to protect future depositors in member banks of the Federal Reserve System.

The Hearst newspapers have urged legislation of this sort ever since Senator John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi introduced a guaranty measure in the Senate in 1915.

As the original Federal Reserve law passed the Senate in that year it contained a guaranty provision along the lines proposed by Senator Williams.

This guaranty provision was stricken from the act in conference in response to a protest that the bill was being loaded down with burdens which the new system might not be able to carry.

This protest was ill-founded as is proved by the fact that the Federal Reserve System has already made net profits amounting to more than $500,000,000. This leaves out of the calculation all of their building expenditures and other large expenses of the Federal Reserve System's operation.

Although the Steagall bill does not guarantee deposits in small State banks over which the Federal Government has no jurisdiction, it does guarantee deposits in all banks, State as well as National, which are members of the Federal Reserve System.

And, as Mr. Steagall truly says, if Congress passes this progressive legislation it will be only a question of time before State banks will find themselves in a situation where business prudence and common sense management demand that they put themselves on a basis of equality with their competitors in the Federal Reserve System.

This State banks could do by joining the Federal Reserve System, and this they wish to do. Congress enacted the Steagall bill and guarantees the deposits of all banks within the Federal Reserve System.

No legislation pending before either House of Congress will do more to restore confidence in the Federal Reserve System than the enactment of Congressman Steagall's progressive measure for the guarantee by the Federal Government of the bank deposits of all banks within the Federal Reserve System.

Baby Finger Printing

Finger-printing of children has become a vogue in Rhode Island.

Attorney-General McLyman and the police at Providence have been swamped by the requests of mothers who want to obtain this unfailing mark of identification of their babies, sons and daughters.

He cannot yield to the abundance of requests from private homes. But he has agreed to send the experts to hospitals, schools and to such private homes where sizable groups of children may be assembled by their anxious mothers.

Times do change. Legislation has been introduced in Rhode Island which would compel the finger-printing of babies, on the ground that it violated personal liberty. Now the people are anxious to have this personal liberty invaded in the interest of personal safety.

March 1 and which has commanded the interest and prayers of the world.

Tennessee Bill

Tennessee less than a year ago again spurned the idea of rejecting her anti-evolution law. If the Darwinists try again they may put it over. They can refute the stand-pat Daytonians by pointing to Bill, Farmer Chappell's hog, the best-dweller in the State.

There is no doubt that Bill is a worthy argument. He is eight and a half feet long and weighs the scales at 1451 pounds. He started off as a tiny runt in a family of ordinary pigs and evolved into one of the prides of Tennessee. If evolution goes a step further his progeny will be as large as rhinos! The only shadow is that pork chops may hit a new low.

He will represent his State at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933, and the same time as the steadily been snoring. When ever there's a big fair coming, princes, marshals and distinguished statesmen send out word they'll be there. This is good redmeat, but Bill has beaten them to it by a year.

Diary of a Modern Pepsy

NEW YORK, April 18.—Diary of a modern Pepsy: Up and word Jack Dempsey stopped off to see my boyhood home, the motor.

At Eddie Dowling the play actor, breezed in and for some reason he always calls me "Ole".

So at petty chores until late afternoon and to call for Peggy and Aubrey Eads and on to Beekman Place to a tea, talking to Hugh Troy, the young marshall, and Grover Alexander and John Randall, and George Houston sang "That's Why Darkies Are Born," without music, very tenderly.

In the evening to the Kent Cooper's for Kent's birthday party. Heard all very merry, what with Reinold Wernersing singing "Mandaly" and Jim Quick reciting. Then dining with Will H. and Jesse Hays to the Waldorf and home to labor until after 3 a. m.

The passing of James Regan, of the old Knickerbocker hotel, removed the last of New York's Mine Hosts of an earlier generation. He rose from bartender to a Third Avenue saloon to command what was, in its day, Gotham's most fashionable hotel. He was the sort who arose at 5:30 a. m. to taste the coffee. He quit at the peak of his fame.

I am curiously attracted by the melancholy of the dirty pawnshop windows scattered throughout the lower East Side. Each unrequited pledge symbolizes a heart yearning. Behind folding windows lay violins, betinal rings, heart-shaped lockets, spangled boules of verse, stands of cheap pearls, parrot pictures, grandma shawls and other reminders now so worthless yet once so highly prized. The most tragic pledge I ever saw was in a London's Soho—a staring, unsmiling glass eye.

Personal nomination for one of the most self-effacing of the snobish idols—Helen Wills Moody.

A pleasantly mysterious figure of Broadway's swirl is Tippy Gray, a stocky young woman with a pouncing mind, who roams the world as fancy dictates. He may be writing music for a Moulin Rouge show in Paris one month, and the next is belaboring, professionally around the breathless curves of Lake Placid. An anthology of human paradox, he leisurely slips period in Rue Cambon and the next day is snoring toward Shanghai's Bund on a Siberian express. He has summed in the blaze of the Southern Cross, muffled, through Alaskan snows and eroded for the night in cups. Formosa's camphor trees, He has seen New York and Hollywood, but he is seldom in either place for more than a few weeks at a stretch.

Strolling the East Side recalls Margaret Fitchback's superb comedy: On Blocker street the babies!

With wit changing so swiftly, it seems inconceivable, in now cautious maturity, that I was the howling nitwit rolling into the aisle at the Columbia in Cincinnati when the vaudeville monologist, James Richmond Glenroy, billed "The Man With Green Gloves," referred to "Chauncy, Oleloah on" Woodard ending.

A lady in Tacoma, Ariz., forwards this clipped gem from an English dentist's tombstone: "Here lies Dr. Harrigley, filling his last cavity."

Caught in the backwash of another grammatical blunder, I feel like the old St. Louis, similarly taxed by school men who would up: "Ten thousand grammarians hang on your reply." The St. Louis caption: "Let 'em hang."

Important Announcements

"An important announcement is coming! Wait for it!" is shouted at me.

"When we've done with the play, we'll have something to say about it!" is shouted at me.

"Turn it off," I declare, "on this radio game."

Of important announcements I'm fed. They will offer the face of some tenor or bass.

For the wrappers that come with their bread.

"An important announcement!" it rings on the air.

As solemn as Trinity's chiming.

"Be patient and brave, and hang on to the wave!"

As they strive for our nickels and dimes.

"We've an offer to make that will startle the land."

Be sure that you share in our plans."

But I cannot be brave, for I'm not one to save.

The labels that come 'round the cans.

An important announcement is coming, I'm told.

But somehow this leaves me untroubled.

As they strive for our nickels and dimes.

Awaiting this blood-tingling word.

It may be important to radio men.

That samples of tooth-paste can get something nice.

And for labels on spice you will get something nice.

But it isn't important to me!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Inner Emptiness

WHAT DO YOU DO after dinner at night? Do you amuse yourself quietly at home? Write letters? Read?

Sew? Play solitaire? Put in an hour on a correspondence course? Listen to the radio?

Or do you get restless—want "something doing"? Feel that you can't endure staying indoors? Go out for a game of pool, or a movie, or walk around window shopping? Or, if it's rainy, call up someone for bridge?

In short, CAN YOU ENTERTAIN YOURSELF IN YOUR LEISURE HOURS? MUST YOU BE ENTERTAINED? ARE YOU CONTENT WITH YOUR OWN THOUGHTS? OR MUST YOU HAVE EXCITEMENT?

But there's nothing wrong with excitement," you say. "Any normal person needs some excitement."

Yes, any normal person needs some excitement. But the person who must have constant excitement isn't normal. There is something very wrong with a person like that.

Pantelemon Romand wrote a book called "Three Pairs of Silk Stockings." It is about several people—once strong, fine people—whose lives are going to pieces under the Soviet regime. Hippolyte Kisliakoff is one of them. Kisliakoff lives with a nagging wife in one small, ugly, dirty room. He is going mad in that little room, filled with noises and smells; but he does not realize how badly he is until his wife goes on a vacation and he is alone.

For so long he has dreamed of being left alone. To be quite alone he is able to read and think; that will be heaven! But now he is alone; and it isn't heaven.

"He did not know what to do with himself and had no desire to touch any of the books. The empty room gave him no pleasure, but depressed him with its silence; and he was impelled to get up and go out. Evidently the interruption of his spiritual life has caused a sort of paralysis. He felt clearly his inner emptiness. For a long time Kisliakoff had noticed dangerous symptoms; he could not sit alone for a single hour, but felt the urge to go out into the street, to the theater, as though, young to the inner stagnation he must have external stimulation."

Dangerous symptoms—fidgeting, fustling, needing "something doing"—those are dangerous symptoms. So Kisliakoff went into the street to find his strength again. But he could not find it. He was never strong to begin with. He was never strong to begin with. He was never strong to begin with.

And unless we can do that, we're in a bad way. For there is nothing that can earth this inner emptiness except ourselves, when a hard pinch comes. Fun and thrills and laughter round—when we get while they last, but they do not and after that we are alone.

We are as empty, as restless, as we were before, and as helpless to face and fight fate.

These feverish, flighty people who crowd around "starting" and "new every minute," boasting that they are "live wires!" They are not live wires. They are dim bulbs. They are empty.

The streets are filled with people like that. The nation is filled with people like that. People going round in dizzy circles running away from themselves because they have nothing to give themselves.

Are YOU that sort of a person? You're out of luck, stranger, if you are. Better throw up. Get acquainted with yourself. Learn to WITNESS WITH IN AND ON your self.

Lest We Forget!

By B. C. Forbes

CONDITIONS admittedly are bad, very bad; for millions of unemployed they are heartbreakingly bad.

But we must not be discouraged and triumphed over equally trying conditions in the past.

Contrast the state of the majority of people today with that ruling during Revolutionary days, when Washington's soldiers had to go many days at a time "without meat and other things without bread."

Contrast the state of the majority of people today with the sufferings endured by a large part of the country during Civil War times.

Recall the privations which afflicted the impoverished South for almost a generation after the war.

Our forefathers were plagued by the panic of 1873 into such distress as we cannot even imagine. Solvency was rare; insolvency almost universal.

What of even later pioneer days? Did the majority of families then enjoy one tithe of the comforts, luxuries, recreations, amusements now within reach of their softer descendants?

They lived a hard, stern, frugal existence, toiling—often heartbreakingly—twelve hours or more six days a week, denied travel, denied costly entertainment, denied annual vacations.

There were no radios then bringing music, amusement, drama, news, education, jazz into the home, either high or humble.

For them were neither nightly nor weekly outings to motion picture palaces.

Not for them was the infinite variety projected into modern life by that greatest of all twentieth-century bores to mankind, the automobile.

No telephone talks with friends or relatives near or far relieved the monotony of the long daily grind.

College education was within reach of only the few. The diversion of travel beyond neighborhood or State boundaries was not for the multitude.

We hear much about the scarcity of money. Our financiers tremble over our supply of gold and what may befall it. Even young men in a few years out of school can remember the days when our banks were paying out no money, when cash commanded a premium, when various varieties of scrip—nondescript pieces of paper issued by clearing houses and others—were made to do the duty of real currency.

Gold! Time was when the United States Treasury could not command half as much as second-rate miniature European countries, when it was unable to make specie payments, when our national credit did not equal that of Czechoslovakia today.

At this moment the United States owns more gold than any other people on the face of the earth, more than one-third owned in the whole world; the U. S. dollar is the world's premier monetary unit, the world's premier medium of international exchange; our credit is the envy of every other land.

Our fields never were more productive, our food animals never more prolific, our barns and storehouses never so filled to overflowing.

Our factories never were so efficient, our mines never so vast and rich, our reservoirs of oil never so unlimited, our means of transportation never so adequate.

In short, today we live in a land not of scarcity but of super-abundance.

Our troubles are wholly man-made. Have we no MEN capable of leading us out of them?

More Tinkering

Legislature and the Auto Rate Gouge

When the Legislature has nothing else to do it begins to tinker with this compulsory automobile liability insurance which will cost the autoists of this State $24,000,000 this year.

The latest scheme is to amend the law so that "charity" hospitals may have the first claim upon the insurance to be paid to persons who may be injured in auto accidents.

Now, the hospitals are all right. The word "charity" is a bit stretched, of course, because every hospital which renders any amount of free service in the course of a year may be incorporated under the law as a "charity" hospital.

But why should they be made preferred creditors? Why, any more than the doctor who administers to the injured patient, the nurse who takes care of him in the long watches of the night, or the druggist who supplies the medicines and the surgical kits? Or the undertaker, in the event the accident is a fatal one?

As a matter of fact, why make anybody a preferred creditor under this law? It is putting the State and the intolerable law into the business of being a collection agency between the hospital and the patient. The hospital and the patient should stand in their relations with each other just as commercial stores and their customers take the ordinary risks of dealing with each other in financial matters.

The law has enough of loopholes and discriminations now. It started out by dividing the people of Massachusetts into indefensible zones, imposing strange conditions and varying rates for insurance upon them as if they were a lot of Arab tribes instead of common citizens of a common Commonwealth.

Instead of putting some common sense and common justice into the law, the Legislature has done nothing but increase the rates and to load down the law with rank inequities. Of course the Legislature did vote itself a $125,000 extra salary grant as an additional price for cluttering up the law with new injustices.

"Blame It on the Women"

The "No Smoking" sign seems to be passing out of existence; becoming as rare as the dodo bird.

Even in railroad stations and other public places where smoking was once proscribed you can light a cigarette, black cigar or ancient pipe without concealing it in the palm of your hand and blow out the smoke in ringslets without cautiously waiting until the attendant's back is turned.

The dining car, where it was once taboo, now leaves it to you and your discretion.

Who is responsible for this great social change, for this new air of freedom? Woman, of course. Give her the credit for it. Or the blams.
